LARGEST SHIRT FACTORY IN STATE OF NEW YORK

The New Charchian Factory, Nearly Completed, Will Enjoy That Distinction and the More Important One of Being a Model of Sanitation and Convenience for Employes.

Little do the people of Kingston realize that the new Charchian Shirt Factory being erected on the corner of Cornell street and Smith avenue is the largest exclusive shirt factory in New York state. At present the company is located on Field Court where the work of manufacturing shirts is going on and when the new factory building is completed about the middle of September Kingston will have a shirt factory excelled by none in the state. Every modern facility will be installed in the new building regardless of cost and every modern invention for the manufacture of shirts and for the convenience of the help will be found.

The building will be fitted up with club rooms for the help, a dining room where those who bring their lunch may eat it and for those who prefer to buy their mid-day meal, a lunch will be provided. A modern kitchen for the preparation of the food is being equipped.

A large entertainment hall for the use of the help will form one of the attractions and here the help will be allowed to meet once a week for entertainments, dances, etc. The object of the management is to make the factory not only a place for work but a place where the employes may work under sanitary conditions and after work meet their fellow workmen, and a place where they may work under favorable conditions and in homelike surroundings. For those who do not wish to dance there will be other amusements provided. A fully equipped gymnasium for the help will be another feature and the land about the building will be fitted out as an athletic field where baseball, tennis and other games may be played.

The factory will be one of the largest in the city in point of the number of employes. When completed [illegible] and 500 people will be employed in the three departments. In the steam laundry where the product will be laundered, over 100 people will be employed in one of the finest laundries in the state. The stitching department will give employment to a force of about 275 people while the cutting department will employ in the neighborhood of 50 people.

B. M Charchian will be the superintendent over the entire building and contrary to any rumors which are absolutely false and unfounded, no out of town man will be brought in for this position. Mrs. Charchian will have charge of the stitching department, the largest in point of number of employes in the entire factory.

The building will be heated by a modern steam heating plant which will heat the entire building even on the coldest day and the factory at all times will be warm and airy. The building is being erected along modern lines, giving plenty of light and ventilation, over 75 per cent of the walls being windows and the interior will be practically as light as the street.

The dressing rooms are to be finished up in white and will be modern and sanitary to the smallest detail. A regular hospital retiring room in charge of a trained nurse will be provided for any employe who may be injured or become ill while at work.

The building is now roofed and enclosed and the interior work is being rushed to completion by the contractors. In order to give the people of the city a chance to inspect this modern factory, a few days before work is begun, a formal opening is to be held and everyone interested will be asked to come and inspect the property where their friends, children, brothers or sisters will work.

The building was designed by Myron S. Teller, the architect of this city and the general construction work was done by Charles J. Michaud. The carpenter work by Buckley & Schryver while the sanitary plumbing and heating is now being installed by the Canfield Supply Company of Rondout. John L. Haines has the contract for the roofing.

The work of construction has been going on so quietly that few people realize the magnitude and size of the new concern. There was no announcement of of the big things to be done by the company when the work was started and few people know that in Kingston one of the best types of modern factory building is now nearing completion. The Charchian company will be running to capacity within a few weeks giving employment to hundreds of workmen and the weekly payroll will be one which will be welcomed by the merchants of the city.

FUNSTON ADVISES RECALL OF PERSHING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 19.—Although Secretary of War Baker refused point blank today to comment on the report that General Funston has recommended to the war department the immediate withdrawal of the Pershing expedition, it was learned on excellent authority that this is the position of the border commander-in-chief.

Funston, in a report sent to the war department last night, declared that the object of the Pershing expedition into Mexico—the dispersal of Villa and his band—had been accomplished. Retaining the troops there under under the exceedingly disagreeable restrictions placed on their movements by the state department was a constant source of trouble, Funston reported. They cannot move from present bases, Funston pointed out, and so long as they stay in Mexico a big force must be held in reserve to protect lines of communication.

The fact that Funston has made this report has caused great dissatisfaction at the state department, where it is admitted that it may complicate the negotiations for a commission. The administration wants to keep the troops in Mexico so that they may have something to trade on in the proposed negotiations. As a result it is understood here that the state department has demanded that the Funston report be sent back to the general at San Antonio with instructions that it cannot be considered and must be withdrawn.

Persons here who know General Funston declare that he will stand pat on his recommendation. He would not have made any such suggestions, officials who know him say, unless he was entirely convinced that such action was necessary. However, in view of existing conditions, officials declared it was doubtful whether any action would be taken to withdraw Pershing pending the naming of the joint committee.

It is understood that the Funston development has made it essential that the American members of the joint commission be named at once and it is expected that Secretary Lansing, on returning here from Annapolis on Monday, will take up names of candidates with President Wilson.

EPIDEMIC IN HIGHLAND.

New Cases and Death Reported in the Town of Lloyd.

Several cases of infantile paralysis have developed since last week, says the Highland Post. Rose Maletti, a twenty months old child in Little Italy, was afflicted but is recovering.

Alberta Minard, aged three years, oldest child of Arthur Minard, living on the north road, contracted the disease and died on Monday, the burial taking place that afternoon. A younger child in the family also became ill and was removed to the hospital, where it is recovering.

Early in the week five year old Charles White, whose parents occupy the Gedney house on lower Main street, developed paralysis. There are a number of children in the family who have been exposed.

The cases of the Roosa and Hocksteiner children are improving. The former was a light case, but the latter was a severe attack, the child lying unconscious from Saturday until Tuesday.

A case was reported from Clintondale station recently, the child dying; also a child sick in the family of S. Chaissan, a mile from Clintondale. Thursday morning two cases were reported, but upon inquiry it was learned that the Coy child had eaten too many peaches, and the health officer of the town of Plattekill only reported the case of a child boarding in the Livingston house on Basket street. Some of the boarders departed at once, breaking quarantine.

QUARANTINES GROW FAR MORE STRICT

From the reports received from the conference of scientists in Washington, from The Freeman's daily wire service from all over the country, and from reports in the New York city newspapers, it is very evident that infantile paralysis is spreading very rapidly in rural districts and smaller cities, not only in New York and New Jersey, but all over the country.

From the list published in the New York Times this morning there are a large number of villages and cities in New York and New Jersey which have just recently advocated putting into effect the same system of quarantine as has been in force in this city since infantile paralysis began to spread, and which met with loud denunciation by some of the very officers and cities now advocating the same plan.

The city of Schenectady has had the same plan in force as that used in Kingston and is now about to prohibit children from leaving, as well as entering, the city. Newburgh, which started with mild precautions, after several cases broke out adopted practically the same rules as in force here. The Newburgh News was at first inclined to be critical of the severe quarantine adopted in Kingston, but now prints the following:

"While it seemed as though Kingston went somewhat to extremes in its infantile paralysis quarantine, the results justify its measures. Following the development of a few cases of the disease, Kingston put up the bars against outside children and questioned strangers generally who entered its gates. Latest reports indicate it is as free as Newburgh from the plague."

The wisdom of a quarantine on all children is shown in the case reported from Accord, where from lack of it many persons have been exposed to infection.

One or two towns in Orange county and some in other parts of the state and New Jersey are attempting to enforce an ordinance prohibiting children from passing through the towns. This is undoubtedly illegal, and is an unnecessary restriction on travel. This city has no such an ordinance and has not attempted to enforce any such rules, although there has been some confusion in the minds of people unable to understand, or who have not taken the trouble to read the newspapers carefully, who are loudly denouncing the illegality of measures in effect here. Undoubtedly the impression arose because children were forbidden to come to this city to board or visit that they were not allowed to pass through the city. If the loud-mouthed ignoramuses who are always looking for a grievance would refrain from exposing their ignorance, and if well meaning people would pay less attention to irresponsible gossip, and direct their energies to support the officers in other cities as they have in this city there would be far less trouble in maintaining quarantine regulations and the disease would not have had the chance to spread as it has.

Dr. Johnston, the local health officer, was right when he said in addressing a recent meeting of physicians at the city hall that the suppressing of an epidemic in this city was due to the support of the health board, the newspapers and the people of the city.

It is utterly unfair for a board of health to pass ordinances and then not only refuse to sustain the health officer seeking to enforce them, but to rebuke him for attempting to enforce them, as was recently done in a neighboring town.

NEW YORK TROOPS CAUGHT IN STORM

By Telegraph to The Freeman

San Antonio, Tex., August 19.—While unofficial reports received here today stated that the full blast of the southern hurricane which swept the Brownsville district had wrecked the camps of the New York state troops at McAllen, Pharr and Mission, it is understood there is no loss of life.

The great majority of the New York troops were out on "hikes" when the storm broke and they were caught in the open when the terrific wind and rain struck.

The Illinois, Iowa and Virginia troops who took refuge in Brownsville when the hurricane struck are understood to be still quartered there today. Many of these soldiers had narrow escapes from death.

STREET CAR STRIKE STILL THREATENS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, August 19.—Union leaders today reiterated their threats of another street car strike, declaring they would not submit to arbitration the question of reinstating fourteen employes discharged after being convicted of various offenses during the last strike.

The company stood firm in its demand for arbitration.

Both sides have telegraphed to Mayor Mitchel at Plattsburg full details of the stand taken and it is understood that the city executive will return here at once to settle the difficulty.

TEXAS CAMPS ARE SWAMPED IN MUD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Antonio, Tex., August 19—General Parker reported over the army wireless from Brownsville today that there had been no loss of life among the troops in the Brownsville district from yesterdayy's hurricane. The damage was heavy, however, according to his report.

The wind reached a velocity of 70 miles an hour at Brownsville, ruining the regulars' camp at Brownsville and the New York militia camps in the McAllen district. The places formerly occupied by tents are mud morasses.

Large quantities of military equipment were lost.

When the storm reached San Antonio the wind had decreased to 50 miles an hour, levelling almost all the tents at Camp Wilson. The camp ground was flooded by rain and the Illinois and Wisconsin militia took refuge in the permanent buildings at Fort Sam Houston.

Considerable equipment was also lost at San Antonio.

Dallas, Tex., August 19—Communication with Corpus Christi, which felt the full effect of yesterday's hurricane, was restored for a short time over a long distance telephone wire today.

It was learned that the wind reached a velocity of 120 miles an hour at Corpus Christi, wrecking summer cottages and causing heavy damage in the business district. Lloyd's recreation pier, 1,000 feet long, was destroyed.

Many were injured by timbers hurled by the gale, but the loss of life is stated to have been very small.

Walden Has Four Plague Cases.

Following a week with no new cases of infantile paralysis in Walden, four new cases were reported to Health Officer Merritt on Thursday. Three are in the family of Oscar Wakefield, his son 19 years old, and two daughters, one 14 and the other 7 years old, being afflicted. The fourth case is the 3 year old daughter of Edward Conklin.

Middletown's First Case.

Thursday afternoon Miss Bessie Atkins, the public health nurse of Middletown, while making her rounds found the 20 months old son of Edward Coleman, a well known machinist of that city, a victim from infantile paralysis. This is said to be the first case in that city.

WOODSTOCK MAN COMMITS SUICIDE

Harry C. Short committed suicide in the back yard of his home at Woodstock at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening by shooting himself with a thirty-eight calibre revolver, the bullet piercing the body just above the heart, and severing the main artery. Death ensued within a very few minutes after the shot was fired.

From what could be learned Mr. Short was injured about the head some years ago and underwent an operation at that time. Lately he has been acting rather strangely, but no one thought he would take his life. Friday he had finished up the chores at the barn, and was walking back to the house. His wife sat on the back porch, and she saw her husband stop and suddenly draw a revolver and pointing it at his breast pull the trigger.

Horrified, she rushed to his side and saw that he was wounded and bleeding profusely. Dr. John C. Kamp was summoned, but he found that nothing could be done to save Short's life.

The dead man was a son of Calvin Short of Woodstock, and was 34 years old.

Coroner E. A. Kelly was summoned and after an examination turned the body over to Undertaker Lasher of Woodstock. The funeral will be held Sunday.

JUDGE CLEARWATER TURNS DOWN TOGA

Will Not Consent to be a Candidate for U. S. Senate and Will Vigorously Support Bacon for the Nomination.

Even since the close of the Constitutional Convention, leading Republicans throughout the state have urged Judge Clearwater to become a candidate for United States senator to succeed Senator O'Gorman. The judge, who repeatedly has declined nominations for state senator and member of congress, when the nomination was equivalent to an election, never seemed to take the suggestion seriously, always saying that he preferred to end his career in the profession as he had but little taste for parliamentary bodies.

When the judicial convention met in Albany on the 11th to recommend candidates for justice of the supreme court, the delegates from the seven counties composing this judicial district, renewed the suggestion of the senatorship with great earnestness, and the Albany Evening Journal, voicing their wish, said the judge generally was regarded as an ideal man for the position because of his knowledge of public affairs, and the long and careful study he had devoted to the consideration of national questions. Judge Clearwater, however, said that he thought either Senator Root should be returned to the senate, or that Robert Bacon, who had been secretary of state, and ambassador to France, would be a better man than he would be.

The entire week has been devoted to conferences between the chiefs of the party in which State Committeeman Philip Elting took an important part. It was generally conceded that had the judge announced himself as a candidate he would have been chosen and probably designated at the primary election in September. Senator Root having failed to secure the nomination for the presidency, declined to enter the race, and the judge again urged Mr. Bacon with the result that on Thursday Mr. Bacon telephoned the judge asking if he would act with Joseph H. Choate and Job E. Hedges as a committee to fill vacancies, and saying that having the hearty support of the judge's friends, he would enter the field. Judge Clearwater said he would be glad to serve, and so far as he had any influence with his friends, political, professional and social, it was at Mr. Bacon's service, whereupon late Thursday afternoon Mr. Bacon announced himself as a candidate, and designated Mr. Choate, the judge and Mr. Hedges as his committee.

There is a widespread feeling throughout the state that while Congressman William M. Calder has made an admirable member of the house of representatives, the interests of the state and country would better be served by his remaining in the house than his going to the senate.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, August 19.—There was an absence of bullish efforts in the stock market at the beginning of business today, and where any activity was shown, substantial declines resulted. Marine Common, after making a gain of ½ to 37, declined to 35¾, and the Preferred declined ¼ to 100½. Reading opened ⅜ lower at 103, but later rallied to 103⅜. The remainder of the list was inactive, with changes confined to small fractions. Anaconda advanced ¼ to 85⅝ and then yielded to 85¼. Steel Common opened at a loss of ⅛ at 91¼, and American Smelting, which opened at 99⅜, reacted to 99⅛. Crucible Steel gained ½ to 73, while Baldwin Locomotivee declined to 75⅝. At the end of the first 15 minutes the market showed a steadier tone, with prices generally ranging slightly under yesterday's final figures. Marine Preferred at the end of this period rallied to 101¼.

Irregularity was displayed in the final dealings, some stocks continuing under pressure from realizing and declining sharply, while others made fractional gains. Marine Preferred, after rallying to 101⅜, dropped to 99¾, but later rallied to 100½, Pacific Mail, after selling at 29, declined to 27. Fractional losses were sustained in a few of the railway issues. Steel Common closed only slightly unchanged from yesterday's final. Government bonds unchanged; railway and others strong.

Mr. and Mrs. Irving Harcourt of Vineyard avenue have had as their guest the past week Frank Harcourt of New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lent entertained their son, Richard, from Saugerties the week end.

F. Randall of Brooklyn was a visitor with his family a few days this week at the Leo Prange place on Maple avenue, which they are at present occupying.

Fred Webster has the building fever. He thought it a good idea to put an addition on his house on the New Paltz road. We are glad to see our neighbors improving their property.

Dr. McCabe and A. V. Decker of Washington Hollow, with a party of friends, motored through this place Wednesday morning en route to Goshen for the races.

H. E. Wilcox was in New York this week buying new goods for their store. Just drop in there soon and see the display.

Clarence Smedes of this place was in West Park calling on friends Sunday.

The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Theron DuBois this Thursday and all present spent a pleasant afternoon. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the session.

Dr. J. Becker of Church street, who is the health officer here, has at present several of his children ill, but at this time the nature of the disease has not come to light. We hear there is a trained nurse in attendance and several doctors. We hope it may prove nothing serious. The doctor has been doing his duty day and night and it seems too bad to think of such sickness in his family. Their many friends hope for the best.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Starr have with them for a visit relatives from New York.

Miss Jane Pratt with several friends attended the Ellenville fair on Wednesday.

Miss Lillian Johnson was out of town visiting friends for the week end.

Miss Hattie Dickinson is at present in New York city spending a short time with a lady friend.

Dr. J. I. Becker, our health officer, was in Kingston one evening this week attending a lecture given by a prominent M. D. of Albany on infantile paralysis. This disease seems to baffle the most of the doctors and is a terrible thing and we hope the cool weather is assigned in a certain measure for a drop in the disease and that it will mark the beginning of the end of this fearful epidemic. Reports are especially encouraging.

Corsie Gunsalus was very sporty Wednesday, attending the races at Goshen and we think we had a glimpse of him at the Ellenville Fair.

Last Sunday there was a baptismal ceremony performed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Pratt, when the little daughter of these people was baptized by a minister from Brooklyn who was at one time in New Paltz, pastor of the reformed Church there of which Mrs. Pratt was a member.

Mr. Baldwin, the artist, has been doing some fine sketching recently. He has at his studio some fine oil paintings.

Mrs. Egbert Van Wagner has several boarders from the city.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Palmer of Grand Street entertained guests from New Jersey the past week.

Mrs. Russell and children of New York are spending several weeks with Mrs. Mandershied and family. Before her marriage she was Miss Tillie Tompkins, a sister of Mrs. Mandershied.

Miss Laura Palmer is spending her vacation at Asbury Park and enjoying the pleasures of the beach and bathing in the grand old ocean.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bickert of Danbury, Conn., are spending their vacation here at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eliot Wilcox, parents of Mrs. Bickert. They also have many friends in this place who are glad to see them.

Capt. R. H. Decker was in Ohioville Monday on business.

Home grown peaches are now in the market. Your reporter was the recipient of some fine ones a few days ago. They were good size, fine color and certainly excellent flavor. We hope there will be a good supply for there will be a great demand for them.

Fred L. Metcalf has completed the new concrete walk from the street to the house entrance for W. E. Wilcox, which is a very great improvement, and the new cobblestone walk to the front of his place is certainly very attractive. It all makes a fine looking place. He is up-to-date and believes in all the improvements.

We can not say when the time has been before last Sunday when there have been no services held in either the Presbyterian, Methodist or Episcopalian Churches. The only church holding services was the Catholic.

Mrs. Gilbert Terwilliger of White street has had as her guest for a short time Mrs. Webster Terwilliger of Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Clearwater have been entertaining Miss Locke of Ticonderoga for a short time.

Dr. and Mrs. F. Welker have been in New York over a week, and will remain for a short time yet, as the doctor has had an operation performed, from latest reports, from which he is doing nicely, and his many friends here, as well as in the city are very anxious to see him around again. He has a large city practice and always spends the month of August at his summer home at this place.

Jerome Yates of North Road was in Poughkeepsie Monday on business. He informed us that he expects to go to California this fall.

Tuesday the Catholic people had a holiday, the occasion being to celebrate the Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary. There were many from the North Road in the village on that morning.

Mrs. J. C. Dederick and Mrs. William Christensen spent some time in New York city this week on business. They left on the boat Tuesday, had a delightful sail down the Hudson, arrived in the city in time for dinner, and were ready next day for their regular shopping expedition. They report very warm weather in the city.

Mrs. Grace Mackey, widow of George D. Mackey of New York, who has been boarding here for some time, and, at present, is a boarder at the home of Mrs. Egbert Van Wagner, fell Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Van Wagner, and has broken or dislocated the hip. Dr. Reed is in attendance, also a trained nurse. She is over 70 years of age. Her friends hope she will improve rapidly. All is being done for her that is possible. Some of her relatives are expected here Thursday. She has the sympathy of friends here.

THINGS THAT HELP.

When washing windows add a few drops of kerosene to the water and with little rubbing the windows will shine. A little bluing is another improver.

An ordinary dish mop is a useful cleaner, reaching to spots not accessible with an ordinary dust mop. To clean spiral springs they are especially helpful, as they may be twisted into the springs, cleaning out all dust. Dip or moisten in kerosene before using.

A clever woman who has had several falls in a dark hall has painted the first step white; this can be used for the cellar stairs also. Keeping the porch and cellar steps scrubbed and clean will save the skirts, as much soil comes trailing over damp, dusty stairs or steps.

Stains on white goods of various kinds, whether from dye or ink, may be removed by soaking in buttermilk several days.

Strong coffee will make better ink if added to the bottle of thickened ink, instead of water.

Dampen the brush of the carpet sweeper before using. Remove all lint and hairs and rub well with kerosene; dry in the air, and it will make the carpet much brighter with little scattering of dust.

It is a problem to keep food hot when using gas. A good-sized piece of sheetiron placed on one of the burners and extending over the shelf will hold plates and dishes to be kept warm. The little simmering burner will give sufficient heat, and some dish may be cooking on it at the same time.

The dish drainer which has a vase-shaped centerpiece and holds the small silver, and around which the plates may be placed for scalding, is a splendid labor saver. The dishes may be washed and scalded and placed on the table in the drainer, then when ready to wipe they will be found to be needing little attention, as they will drain dry.

A pan of hot suds, a dish mop, and, presto! the dishes are washed; then, while the baking pans and kettles are being done the dishes are draining.

Expert Advice For the Automobile Owner

Queries and Replies Covering Matters of Importance to the Man Who Runs a Car

I have a four cylinder car and for some time it has been missing on No. 1 and No. 4 cylinders, and I am unable to remedy this. The plugs are all right and the compression good. I have put new platinum points in the magneto breaker, have cleaned the carbon from the cylinders, adjusted and readjusted the spark plug points. Have tried new plugs, changed them from 2 and 3 to 1 and 4; have adjusted the carbureter, but still numbers 1 and 4 miss. Sometimes they miss, and then again they do not. This occurs at both low and high speeds, with and without load. Can you tell me what the trouble can be in this case?

The circuit breaker cam in the magneto is probably worn so that the circuits are not broken on cylinders Nos. 1 and 4 or the distributor gaps for these cylinders might be too wide. Leaky valves or manifold connections might also account for the missing cylinders.

What are the requirements of a first class spark plug, porcelain or stone?

That the insulation does not leak, that the shell is not cracked by tightening the spark plug nut and that the plug does not foul or the points rapidly burn away.

Can you tell me the correct method of setting or putting on a magneto, also as regards the brakes in order to get the best results when valves and other conditions are all right?

It is common practice to set the breaker box so that when No. 1 cylinder passes the point of dead center—that is, at the top of the piston stroke—the points for No. 1 cylinder will break, this with the spark lever at full retard.

Approximately how much and what size of fine wire would be used in making a cut-out relay to work on a six volt generator?

The amount of wire and size will vary with the design of the cut-out, but it will approximate in general the ordinary bell buzzer winding designed for that voltage.

Can you tell me how to find the horsepower of automobiles?

Multiply the bore of the motor by itself, then by the number of cylinders and divide by 2½.

What is the relation of valve diameter and width of valve seat to valve spring pressure?

The relation between valve diameter and valve spring tension is simply empirical. There is no definite rule which designers follow in this respect. In general it will take more tension if the speed of the motor affects the stiffness of the spring more than the points you mention, as at high speeds it is necessary to have a spring which will close the valve sufficiently rapidly to prevent the cam from running away from the follower. It must be remembered that the spring acts with the gas pressure against the cam action, so that in lifting the valve the cam must lift the load of the spring plus the load due to the area of the valve upon which the pressure is acting. In closing the gas pressure is immaterial, as at that time it has generally reached close to atmospheric.

At times when I turn on the lights my car the engine stops. I have examined all the wiring and can find nothing loose or dirty or short circuited. I have a vacuum gasoline system put on the car and thought perhaps when the engine stopped it was not feeding properly, but on examination found plenty of gasoline. What do you think is the cause of this and how can I remedy it?

The trouble may either be caused by poor connection on the ignition system or by a swinging ground somewhere in the circuit that causes the circuit breaker to trip. It is suggested that you inspect the system and see if the engine stops or go out when the ignition is off. You can test this by trying it on the battery ignition with the lights on. It is possible that there might be a broken valve spring in the valve leading to the intake manifold on the vacuum system. If this valve spring were broken occasionally a supply of raw gasoline would be drawn directly into the intake manifold. This would kill the motor, though the gasoline supply in the carburetor would not be seriously affected by the broken spring.

How is the power divided on the rear wheels of an automobile going around corners at right angles? Is the power equal on both wheels or is there more on one wheel than on the other?

In turning a corner at right angles the power is exerted by the outside wheel while the inside wheel simply acts as a pivot point.

I have 33 4 tires on the rear wheels of my and 32 by 3½ on the front wheels. Does it take away any power when one has oversize tires on rear? Please explain if it does, and how much.

The difference would be so slight as to be almost negligible. The only thing the oversize tires is to raise the car slightly be speed of engine and wheels—that, it would take slightly less num of revolutions of the crank shaft travel a given distance where you tires of larger diameter.

When I stop my engine with the switch I have no trouble in starting it, but when I stall it or "kill" it I have to crank and spin it around a great deal before I can get it started again. What is the trouble with it and what remedy would you prescribe?

Since your car seems to run perfectly except for this difficulty in starting when the engine has been stalled this condition seems to indicate that your carburetor is adjusted correctly and that your engine is working at maximum efficiency. It would be very easy to make your motor less difficult to start when stalled, this requiring simply that the carburetor be adjusted to supply a richer mixture to the cylinders. The reason you have a hard time stopping the engine when stalled is that it is stopped instantly and the cylinders contain only inert dead gas which gives no explosion when the spark is turned on. When the motor is stopped on the switch, on the other hand, it makes several revolutions before coming to rest, thus pumping a fresh charge of live gas into the cylinders. With this live gas under compression in the motor starting is an easy matter.

It would seem best to leave the carburetor as it is, for it is saving you money in gasoline and wear on your motor, as well as preventing accumulation of carbon in the cylinders. You should be more careful in driving to see that the throttle is always open sufficiently to meet the conditions of road and load. An expert driver or one who is familiar with his car rarely stalls his motor, and by giving attention to sufficient throttle opening you should avoid this trouble.

I am overhauling my car and find that the intake valve opens before the exhaust is closed. What is the reason for this? Would it not allow the exhaust gases to back up into the carburetor? Or, if not that, would it not impair the suction of the intake charge?

The point is often brought up as to why the exhaust valves are left open after the inlet has been opened, and also why the exhaust is opened before the end of the power stroke, thus allowing some of the explosive pressure to escape through the valve opening. Examination of the conditions of operation soon dispels any thought that the exhaust should remain closed until the very end of the explosion stroke, at least.

As a matter of fact, the practice is almost universal of leaving the inlet valve open until the piston has not only reached the bottom of its suction stroke, but has actually started back on its compression stroke, ordinarily about one-half inch up. At first thought it would seem that some of the gas drawn in would be forced back again into the inlet passage, but the speed of the engine must be taken into consideration. At a normal rate of running about fifteen cycles would be completed in one minute with a moderate speed engine, and at such a speed the piston has reached the lowest point of its stroke before the gas has all been able to get in, because the gas moves slower. So even when the compression stroke has begun there is still some slight suction tending to draw more fuel in.

In charging a magnet how much and what size magnet wire should I use to secure the best results on a 110 volt direct current? How many lamps will have to be used in series?

There are a number of sizes and shapes of electro magnets that would do your work, but perhaps the most practical and easiest to make is one that has a diameter of about four inches and a height of about seven and one-half inches. The core should be made of a cylindrical piece of soft iron about one inch in diameter, and you can use a disk of fiber material at either end to hold the wire on. Carefully wrap the iron core with a piece of heavy oiled paper and then shellac it. Leaving about twelve inches of length free, wind about ten pounds of insulated copper wire around the core carefully and evenly throughout its length. Wind the two spools in opposite directions so that a north pole of one will be opposite a south pole of the other when you assemble the two wound spools side by side on a wooden base so that they are about one-half inch apart. Connect them in series and then run the end wire from each to the current source through a switch. You would not have to use any lamps.

Which gives the brighter light, a six volt lamp or a seven volt? The battery is a six volt storage, and what is the right candle power to use? Does it harm the battery to use seven volt lamps? Will a seven volt lamp burn out as easily as a six volt?

On a six volt circuit the six volt lamp will give the brighter light, although its life will not be as long as the seven volt. The candle power can be anything you choose, but the greater the candle power the more current will be consumed. Lamps which are up to date burn about one watt per candle power. It does not harm the battery to use seven volt lamps, and a seven volt lamp will not burn out as quickly as a six volt on a six volt circuit.

$635 Roadster $620 F. O. B. TOLEDO

This Overland is the world's most powerful low-priced car.

It has a 31½ horsepower en bloc motor that is a perfect marvel for speed, power and endurance.

By increasing the bore of the motor from 3⅛ to 3⅜" we are able to offer a power plant which at 1950 R. P. M. develops full 31½ horsepower.

Tests under every condition in all parts of the country demonstrate that it easily develops better than fifty miles per hour on the road.

Speed of course varies under different conditions, but in practically every instance it has been getting fifty miles an hour and with ease.

We have scores of telegrams showing that twenty to twenty-five miles per gallon of gasoline is not unusual.

The performance of this car is almost beyond belief.

Take any other low priced car on the market. Pit it against this new Overland. Compare them for sheer speed, for abundance of power, for riding comfort and economy, and you'll find this car will back anything else clean off the boards.

That's a strong statement, but a fact nevertheless.

Try it yourself and see.

Here are more important facts.

It has four-inch tires which are more than generous for a car of this size.

Not only has it a large and roomy body, but it has an attractive, up-to-date streamline body.

It has the latest and most improved system of ignition.

It has the cantilever springs—the easiest riding springs in the world.

What's more, it's complete. Not a thing to buy. You get the finest Auto-Lite electric starting and lighting system, magnetic speedometer, one-man top, demountable rims and practically every accessory found on the highest priced cars.

It only goes to prove how big production can cut cost and save you money.

KINGSTON N Y, AUG 19, 1916

Every lover of American free institutions is disturbed by the news that the Senate of the United States has passed the bill appropriating $50,000,000 for the purpose of putting the Government into the shipping business Nobody has yet succeeded in competing successfully with a Government which pays no attention to such things as insurance, interest on investment supervision and other overhead charges, and if this bill has any result whatever beyond the wasting of public money it will be the driving of private capital out of this business If the building of American ships were a languishing industry there would be a chance for argument in favor of the proprietor of the Government entering the field, but it is well known that this industry is booming All the ship yards are far behind with orders, and the Government yards will have all they can do to carry out the preparedness program The whole fifty millions will serve merely to 'fill the pockets of what Bryan calls 'deserving Democrats," unless this scandalous appropriation is supplemented by others for the building of new shipyards How the 'Rev' Dr Bayliss must wish he had become a Democratic leader instead of devoting his great talents to trifling affairs

During the debate in the Senate on the shipping bill Senator Underwood called attention to the fact that the tariff law which he helped to frame provided for a five per cent discrimination in duties in favor of goods imported into the United States in American bottoms, and that this provision has not been enforced by the Wilson administration Up to date American ship owners have been illegally mulcted to the extent of over $30 000 000 In other words, the Government is robbing our business men of enough money to set up opposition to them It is just as outrageous a performance as it would be for the City of Kingston to make some retail merchant pay the expense of establishing a rival store which would put him out of business because it would have no overhead to pay Senator Underwood is not the only Democrat who is enraged by such actions They will all be heard from in November

While the cost of white paper is soaring and newspaper publishers are at their wits ends to negotiate for constant and sufficient supplies it is comforting to turn to the heavy tomes of the current issues of the Congressional Record Here, indeed, there is no worriment at any famine and a blithe undercurrent of good nature is in evidence as both parties prepare to load the official publication with campaign material to be franked all over the country at government expense and to be a further burden on the mail service A choice sample of the accomplished abuse of the 'Leave to Extend Remarks" privilege is contained in the bulky volume of Tuesday which contains nearly 200 pages, a copy weighing nearly a pound Under the heading quoted are the following paragraphs

By unanimous consent Mr Griffin was given leave to extend his remarks in the Record, to include an address delivered by Mr Fitzgerald as chairman of the New York Democratic State Conference at Saratoga

Mr Rogers Mr Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend my remarks in the Record

Mr Carlin On what subject?

Mr Rogers I have not made up my mind yet.

The Speaker pro tempore Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Massachusetts?

There was no objection

And there you are The nation-wide reading circle of the Record Reading list will wait in breathless attention while Mr Rogers makes up his mind Meanwhile Mr Fitzgerald's Saratoga effervescings will make a sparkling contrast to the energetic lambasting which he gave the Democratic party in the Sixty third Congress for its unmitigated extravagance in appropriations Cut loose the linotype batteries!

We do not know to what denomination Bishop E E Hoss, D D, of Nashville, Tenn, is connected by the ties of faith but his prayer in the United States Senate on Monday asked the divine blessing in a manner where it is much needed In this prayer he also said: "We thank God for this country, and especially praise Him at this time that in the order of His providence while all the world is in tumult and storm we are at peace, and we pray that in the years to come we will be kept at peace, with honor" From the matter now issued from Washington it would be difficult to glean the slightest line of credit given to any divine responsibility for our present condition of peace True, the slogan of "Thank God for Woodrow Wilson" has been revived, but the blessings of peace, we are told, have been realized through presidential and not by any providential power Clergymen are proverbially careless of details and in his prayer the good bishop was perhaps guilty of a slight inaccuracy in ascribing to deity the praise for this country's being at peace. When talking shop we most of us fall into the same practice and prayer is frequently only talking shop for gentlemen of the cloth Couldn't Qualify.

Newspaper readers have all been told that the requisite for being very much 'in society' in New York is to be very rich And the view finds support it is said inside the charmed circles itself At an evening party with song birds from the Metropolitan one of the proudest queens left in the middle of the program A rival whose dislike of music was equally genuine rose to follow her, but was detained by the gentleman by her side himself a wit and a noted arbiter of the elegancies No, my dear lady he said 'you aren't rich enough to leave early Mrs A has ten times your money—it's all right for her but you must be polite and stay till the end' —Harrison Rhodes in Harper's Magazine

Could Understand That

The government had installed a telegraph line from Prejedor to Bihatch (Bosnia)

What is the meaning of this wire asked the astonished inhabitants of a village through which the line happens to pass

It is a telegraph said the headman of the village who had been in consultation with the officials 'One can send a message along this wire straight from here to Stamboul'

The villagers were incredulous This is impossible' How can a message run along a wire?

The headman thought awhile, then he hit upon the proper explanation 'Imagine he said, a dog that is terribly long, and whose tail stretched like the wire on those poles, imagine that his tail is so long that he reaches from here to Stamboul Now, suppose we pinched his tail here Wouldn't he howl in Stamboul'

Recruiting Sarcasm.

Some recruiting officers do not hesitate to be satirical about the attestation of the medically unfit, remarks the Manchester Guardian For example a very frail and obviously unfit applicant called on the local recruiting officer the other day to find out whether he would be able to get back to his office on the day of summons What time shall I have to come here he asked, "and how soon shall I be able to get away" My dear boy" said the recruiting officer sympathetically, 'there's no sense in your coming at all I can see that by looking at you But you'll have to be here before 7 o'clock and I don't know when you'll get away There'll be a row of bath chairs from this office halfway down the High Street"

Would Re-Apply.

Football matches were young Joe's besetting weakness He was always asking for time off to go and see them At last his employer got sick of it and after his usual Friday request said sternly, "Now understand me, my lad You've five Saturday mornings off already this football season. If you take tomorrow you'll go altogether." Crestfallen, Joe beat a silent retreat. But a few minutes later he was back in the private office again, his face wreathed in smiles The "boss" looked up inquiringly "I've been thinking, sir," said the lad, "you'll be wanting another boy in my place, won't you?" "Of course, we shall," agreed the boss "Do you know of one?" Joe touched his forelock respectfully. "No, sir," he stammered, "but I—I was going to ask you, sir, if—if I'm here early on Monday morning, will —will you give me a chance?"—New York Globe

Mazarin's Bible.

The "Mazarin Bible" is so called because the first copy described was found in the library of Cardinal Mazarin at Paris in 1760 It was printed by Gutenberg between 1450 and 1455 and was the first complete book ever printed from movable type. Its distinction is not in any peculiarity of text, but in the fact that it was the first book of any kind so printed under the personal supervision of Gutenberg, the inventor of printing. There are known to exist twenty-six copies, worth from $15,000 to $20,000 each.

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

New York, Aug. 19.—That the Underwood tariff bill had, according to Democratic testimony, failed to raise sufficient revenue for the expenses of the government by $205,000,000 was the statement made in this letter yesterday. Now, also on the testimony of the Democratic leaders, $130,000,000 must be added to that figure, making a grand total of $335,000,000, irrespective of $50,000,000 to be carried by the shipping bill. The senate finance committee estimates that the deficit for the coming fiscal year will amount to $364,243,000. The appropriations for the coming year will total $1,700,000,000 as against $1,114,000,000 for the current fiscal year. The Democratic leaders estimate the receipts from all sources for the next fiscal year at $76,000,000, making the deficit $364,243,000, and estimate that if there is necessity of maintaining the present force on the Mexican boundary after January 1, next, still more bonds must be sold to carry on the government. These figures do not take into account the $50,000,000 to be appropriated by the McAdoo-Wilson shipping bill, which is to be passed to "save the president's face," nor the expense of the government nitrate plant. Of course, the contention is made by the leaders in congress that most of the increase is due to preparedness, but an examination of the work of congress will show profligate extravagance and waste in every direction. In this last annual message to congress, President Wilson announced that the amount required to carry out the preparedness program would be $98,800,000 and on that basis estimated the deficit on June 30, 1917, at $235,000,000. The discrepancy between the president's estimates and the developments are characteristic of the Wilson-McAdoo type of financing.

Too Much Pie.

One of the greatest sources of Democratic wastefulness has been the creation of commissions which, if they are to be judged by results, were designed primarily and in many instances solely to provide soft snaps for "deserving Democrats." The federal trade commission, the farm loan board, whose members receive $10,000 a year salary and expenses; the high joint commission on Pan-American relations; the commission to investigate railroads; the Alaskan commission; the commission on the feasibility of the government's manufacturing its own munitions; the naval consulting board; the Mexican commission (created by the president without the authority of advice of congress); the commission on the mobilization of industries; the commission on the conciliation of labor, etc., have all been created by this administration and their maintenance involves great and almost wholly unnecessary expense. Furthermore, a number of commissions which have done useful work and served their purpose, but which should have been abolished, are being maintained for no apparent purpose except to afford soft snaps for "deserving Democrats." And now comes the tariff commission, with six members at $7,500, to say nothing of expenses, the salaries of a secretary, clerks, etc., created by a Democratic administration solely as a matter of political expediency, as has been pointed out by such prominent Democrats as Representative Claude Kitchin, Senators John Sharp Williams, James Reed and Oscar Underwood. It is even generally believed that John Lind is still on the government payroll, although the state department and President Wilson refuse to confirm or deny the report.

Preparedness Waste.

Throughout the preparedness measures which this congress has passed are to be found instances of criminal waste and misappropriation of the public funds. A large part of these is for the purpose of rehabilitating southern navy yards which are virtually obsolete and should be abandoned, for fitting our yards to build ships, when the work could be done far better and more economically by private ship builders, provided only that the government maintained at most two yards capable of building ships in order to hold in check the prices charged by private builders. Whatever view may be taken of government manufacture of armor plate under normal circumstances, with gigantic deficit piling up and private plants, thoroughly equipped, offering to manufacture it at prices to be fixed, not by themselves but by the government, the expenditure of $11,000,000 for a government plant, which for years must be largely experimental, is worse than folly.

Carranza's Latest.

Striking example of Carranza's hatred of foreigners, including Americans, is afforded by his latest decree that all foreigners who seek to acquire oil or timber lands, fisheries, water rights, etc., must forfeit their citizenship, become Mexican citizens and abandon all right to ask protection from their own governments. It is said that the administration will protest as soon as it has received the official text of this decree, but inasmuch as Carranza has always accorded the most contumelious treatment to President Wilson's every protest, those who have or are seeking to exploit their grants in Mexico have little hope of relief. It must be borne in mind, however, that European nations will not stand for the high-handed and confiscatory measures of Carranza once the war is over. They would not have stood for them this long had they not been engaged in war. And the United States will face serious obstacles to the maintenance of the Monroe Doctrine immediately there is peace in Europe. The now warring nations will demand protection for the persons and respect of the rights of their nationals in Mexico and will insist, if the United States is unwilling to enforce their demands, upon going into Mexico to enforce them themselves.

Bacon a Candidate.

New Yorkers generally are considerably interested in the announcement of Robert Bacon's candidacy for the senate. He will oppose Former Representative Calder, whose candidacy received the approval of the Republican conventon. The Republican managers view the Bacon candidacy with complacency, as they regard him as a high class man and believe that the ante-primary campaign which will be conducted by Messrs. Calder and Bacon will do much to arouse the voters and to work up enthusiasm irrespective of who is nominated at the primary. The Democratic leaders profess to believe that the Bacon candidacy is the precursor of a serious split in the Republican ranks.

Another Strike Threatened.

Hardly have New Yorkers settled down to the conviction that they may ride in the street cars instead of walk, as so many of them did last week, when they are confronted with the danger of another strike. The unions and the street car heads seem again unable to reconcile their difficulties. The situation appears to be the outcome of that labor unrest which is so general throughout the country.

A WARNING.

Science and Common Sense Agree on Milk.

(From the New York Sun).

That it is not a far cry from Nathan Straus's common sense to the highest scientific authority has recently been demonstrated by the investigations of Alice C Evans, made for the Agricultural Department, the results of which are published in the Journal for Infectious Diseases. In a study of 192 samples of freshly drawn milk of 161 cows in five different dairies, this investigator found 15 per cent containing probably virulent bacteria. In 58 per cent she discovered micrococci liable to become virulent and cause boils, abscesses and blood poisoning. She concludes that "The fact that bacteria commonly present in milk from healthy cows were parasitic, and in some cases virulent in type, should hasten the conviction that milk is certified only when pasteurized."

This conclusion confirms the opinion we expressed in commenting upon a recent discussion in the New York Academy of Medicine. Indeed, the recent Hartford, Bridgeport and New Haven epidemics of malignant sore throat point the lesson that certified milk is not so good as pasteurized milk, since even in the best conducted dairies unrecognizable sources of infection in the milker's family, in the milker himself, have escaped detection. This was shown in an epidemic of malignant sore throat in the tuberculosis hospital at Raybrook, where the milk was regarded as faultless, being under careful inspection, and the epidemic ceased after pasteurization had been adopted.

If additional proof were needed of the value of pasteurization, it is furnished by two recent investigations, one by Dr. Janet Lane-Cooper which shows that "milk contains substances of unknown composition essential to life when milk is the sole diet, but there is no evidence to show that these substances are destroyed by boiling, when not prolonged." Another scientific confirmation of this fact is contributed by Weill and Marchand, who for the protection of the French troops have studied deficiency diets since the war began. They affirm that they have never encountered a case of scurvy among infants fed on freshly sterilized milk, and that even on the commercially sterilized milk it takes months for the child to develop actual scurvy. Paris clinics in which sterilized milk is distributed have made the same report.

There is an important economic lesson in these American, English and French observations, when it is considered that the price of certified milk in New York is fifteen cents a quart, and that of A grade pasteurized milk is eleven cents, making a saving of four cents in the purchase of the latter, which we are now reliably told is quite as healthful as the more costly fluid, besides being safer. The difference in cost is justified because pasteurization is inexpensive, while the fulfillment of all conditions required for certification involves considerable outlay in time, labor and money to the farmer.

Considering the large quantity of milk consumed in every family, the scientifically demonstrated equality of good pasteurized milk with certified milk must inure to the great advantage of every household.—Advertisement.

New Paltz Man Drowned.

Howard Fielding, formerly of New Paltz, was drowned on Wednesday night in the East river, at New York. He was in the employ of the Flynn-O'Rourke Construction Company, which is working on the tubes under the East river. Fielding went out with two assistants in a row boat to take soundings. The boat was upset by swells from a passing ocean going steamship. One man clung to the boat and was picked up. Fielding and the other man started to swim ashore, but Fielding sank, probably from cramp, about 75 yards from shore. The body has not yet been recovered. His grandfather, Philip LeFevre, and his mother are residents of New Paltz.

The fair of the M. E. Church was a great success. Everybody is pleased. The ladies deserve a whole lot of credit for their tireless labor in benefit of their church.

The boarding season is now on the very highest. Every boarding house is well filled up.

The town board passed the resolution last Saturday that all children under 16 years of age should not be permitted to any public gathering. Even though we have not had a single case of infantile paralysis in our town, we think it a very wise thing to do all in our power to prevent the coming of that awful disease.

WILSON ISSUES ULTIMATUM TO RAILROADS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 19.—While the railway presidents were today carefully explaining to President Wilson why, in their opinion, they could not immediately grant to their employes the eight hour working day, the president issued to the public what was in effect an ultimatum to the roads demanding that they accept his plan on trial.

In his statement the president declared that the eight hour day has the sanction of society in its favor and should be adopted even in cases where the work called for could not be done in eight hours. He declared that only through experience can it be demonstrated whether it is true that the railroads cannot carry on business by granting this concession as it will require that experience to show the interstate commerce commission the facts.

The president demanded that the railroads concede the proposition already accepted by the men and permit the overtime question and the contingent proposals of the railroads to be passed upon by a congressional commission. The president insists that such commission shall ascertain the facts and report but shall make no recommendations. When the report is complete, the president desires that either side shall have the right to give notice of the terminaton of the present agreement.

It was accepted in official circles that the president's statement was designed to hold the railroads responsible if they shall continue to refuse to accept his plan and insist on arbitration of all of the questions at issue.

When the railway presidents left the White House following their conference with the president which lasted fifty-five minutes they learned for the first time of the president's statement. They were plainly much disturbed and confidentially insisted that the president had taken them at a disadvantage. Some of the more radical insisted that the railroads make public all of the facts of the negotiations but Chairman Holden and others who are trying to prevent serious trouble objected.

It was finally decided to return to the hotel for another conference and then decide what to do. Mr. Holden said that the presidents would see the president again but whether it would be late today or not until Monday he said he could not say. He thought that it would be Monday.

In discussing the situation, Mr. Holden said:

"The situation is too delicate for us to discuss at this time. The conferences with the president have not yet been broken off and will continue. We will confer further among ourselves and later will go back to the White House but I suppose maybe not until Monday."

GOOD RACING AT CLOSE OF FAIR

Friday, the last day of the Ellenville Fair, proved to be one of the best of the year. The two races in the afternoon were, according to followers of the sport, the best of the entire racing program. In the last heat of the free for all the track record held by Andrew N. J. was equalled by Wanless, H. B. Crossman of Monticello, who won the race taking the last two heats. The track record is 2:14.

The 2:27 class pace or trot for a purse of $250, was won by Leonia B., driven by J. S. Murray of Chester, who took three straight. The time for this race was 2:24 1-4, 2:24, and 2:24. The money division was: first, Leonia B.; Winsome Worthy, F. Brink, Stone Ridge, second; Minnie Patchen, L. A. Hoornbeek, Ellenville, third; Belle Onward, J. Sheeley, Monticello, fourth.

The Free-For-All purse $250, after several bad starts proved to be the fastest race of the day and the most exciting. Strathstorm driven by J. S. Murray of Chester took the first heat in 2:16. Wanless driven by H. B. Crossman of Monroe took the two following heats making it two out of three. Time, 2:15 1-4 and 2:14, which equalled the track record. The money division of the purse was: Wanless, first; Dick Mason, H. B. Clark, New York, second; Faust Patchen, D. C. Lucas, Morristown, Pa., third; and Strathstorm, J. S. Murray Chester, winner of the first heat, fourth money.

WILSON SUMMONS ALL R. R. PRESIDENTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 19.—The White House announced this afternoon that the presidents of all the railways in the United States affected by the threatened strike who are not here now conferring with President Wilson would be asked to come to Washington at once. It was stated that the president wants all of the railway companies to share in the responsibility if a strike is precipitated. Telegrams will be sent at once to the ones not now here.

AUTO GYMNASTICS ON NEW OILY WAY

Upper Clinton Avenue the Scene of Many Queer Stunts by Automobiles That Float in Mess of Oil.

Did you ever watch a sheet of sticky fly paper when the flies are coming fairly fast, they hit the stuff and stick and gum around unable to move?

Well, the uptown end of Clinton avenue above Main street is the sticky fly paper today and the automobiles are in the role of the flies. The drivers are keeping up the illusion by an angry buzzing at the city department of streets which is responsible for flooding the asphalt with a heavy coat of Dust-O-Line oil at 8 o'clock this morning.

V. H. Winchell, driving in with his new Overland from West Shokan, was among the first victims. He came around the curve out of North Front street at the rate of eight miles an hour, his car struck the oil and began to perform skidding stunts which he couldn't control. The Overland finally ended up on the edge of the sidewalk opposite the Senate House with its left front wheel smashed to bits.

Other cars turning into the oily surfaced street did stunts that would have done credit to the eccentric tricks that motion picture operators make cars do. They went forward and back, sideways and cornerwise, while their operators were made dizzy and obliged to stop.

Miss Delta Boice was one of the few who got through. In a Paige roadster Miss Boice came up Clinton avenue and proceeded slowly until the oil-covered tires began to slip and slide and the car covered most of the space between the curbs before she brought it to a stop. Miss Boice retained her presence of mind, however, and Martin Snyder and several bystanders went to the rescue and propelled the car out of oil belt by four-man power.

Clark R. Gavit, moving up the street in his Overland, was stalled by the oil opposite Sherwood Lodge and could not get further.

"If I only had a sandbox, I'd be all right," said Mr. Gavit. He had about closed arrangements for a windlass when finally a volunteer rescue brigade pushed his car into John street.

Boarders at Sherwood Lodge were out in force as the arrival of each automobile presented a new wrinkle in methods of getting by the oil. The cars would proceed as usual and the drivers would be looking at the mirrored oily surface and at the crowd to find out what the trouble was. They soon discovered it when things began to slide.

"I thought it was new quarantine limit," said one out of town driver as he slipped his car along the slimy covering. He got by without outside help.

F. H. Goodyear, proprietor of Sherwood Lodge, was vigorous in his protests against the oiling of the street which he said was unnecessary and unsolicited.

I telephoned the street department and they told me that the oil was necessary to preserve the asphalt," said Mr. Goodyear. He also objected to its being tracked into the house by persons crossing the street. It was said that Commissioner Dederick gave the order.

Commissioner Ward B. Everett summoned to the scene by Mr. Winchell but pouring oil over the troubled waters of the thoroughfare was out of the question. The Commissioner made no comment but it was plain that he thought the job was about the last word in efficiency somewhere.

"The Greasiest Way" is what one wit styled the methods of treating the street and it was certainly liberal treatment. If intended as a preservative, this asphalt ought to be embalmed.

John street from Clinton avenue to Fair also was given a bath in the Rockefeller deluge. This pavement is Blackstone which is generally supposed not to need oil. It got it. So did stores and houses along the line. Special mats are being placed at entrances to catch some of the surplus from the feet of pedestrians.

An unknown auto driver slid around into John street from Fair and skidded just at the rear of the Styles jewelry store. The oil was washed up onto the walk by the tires but the machine escaped undamaged.

Street Finally Closed.

Officer Kuehn reported to the street department about the pouring of the oil soon after the work started but no effort was made to stop it. Street Superintendent Van Keuren is said to have told one complainant to see the Board of Public Works.

Finally action was taken to close the street by posting one of the street cleaning force at the Main street end of the asphalt and another at the Fair street end. These men will be on duty until fine screenings from the city crusher can be thrown on top of the oil and the street is again in a safe condition for travel.

This end of Clinton avenue is poular with autoists anxious to avoid the more congested sections in Wall and Fair street in coming from or going to Broadway. Some of the motorists expressed vigorous opinions about the intelligence displayed in the oil demonstration but these opinions would not look well in print.

Get It Exact.

"Why is it that the butcher always sends me more meat than I order, never by any chance less?" complained a young housekeeper to her husband.

"Let me give him an order," said he, and, stepping to the telephone, he called up the market.

"Send me two pounds of porterhouse," he ordered, "and, say, if you can't cut two pounds make it a pound and a half."

He got the two pounds by the next delivery.—New York Sun.

SALARY CUT IN FALL

Managers Contemplate Reduction in Players' Stipends.

Baseball Magnates Agitated Over Result Likely to Follow When Wages Are Reduced—Most of Trouble Be From Mouth.

One of the many questions agitating the baseball powers that be is this:

Is there going to be any serious trouble when the salary cutting season opens in the fall?

Usually the pleasant autumnal months have merely ushered in the salary boosting time. Particularly was this true when the Federal league was in its heyday, picking all the peaches from the O. B. bough that weren't glued fast with higher salary cement. The winds that blew across the orchard naturally boosted the total in the old pay envelope. But now that the wind of competition is stilled—ah, me: these coming days are likely indeed to be "the saddest of the year."

But what will happen when the pruning knife is taken in hand and the farmers set in to work? If, as is reported, salaries are really to go on the toboggan, there's bound to be trouble. Of course, most of the trouble will be of the mouth variety. The "foot" may be added to the "mouth" disease, in some instances. Where there is any doubt of the actual, real value of a player as a drawing card, he may find himself in the discard if he raises too big a howl.

It is said that the players are up to the minute prepared. From time to time the members of the various clubs have been meeting as the schedule has brought them to New York, and meeting not only themselves but the managers of their own mutual protection band. Just how many meetings there have been behind the mysteriously locked doors I don't know, nor do I know how far any association has been formed and plans laid.

CLASSY RIGHT-HAND PITCHER

Fred Toney of Cincinnati Is Ranked With Alexander—Performing in Clever Fashion.

In Fred Toney, Manager Mathewson of Cincinnati, has one of the classiest right-handed pitchers in baseball, a man who ranks with Alexander in effectiveness, and who will give the Quaker star a run for pitching honors in all likelihood this season. Toney is a Southerner, having been born in Nashville, Tenn., 26 years ago. He first began pitching regularly in 1909 with an amateur team known as the Free Silver Sluggers, in Nashville, and lost but two games all year. The following season he played semi-professionally in Nashville, winning 26 out of 31 games. In 1908 he played for a time with the Bowling Green

Fred Toney.

(Ky.) team, and in mid-season received a tryout with the Winchester club of the Blue Grass league. He made good and the following year was the star of the league, though he didn't advance. In 1909 he made such a sensational record that the Philadelphia Nationals obtained him and took him up at the close of the year. He was shifted to Chicago, where he played the following year, and after a couple of seasons figured in another swap, this time to the Reds, with whom he is now performing in brilliant fashion.

PROVIDENCE HAD STAR TEAM

Won Twenty Consecutive Games in 1884—Charley Radbourne Pitched in Eighteen Contests.

The Providence team of 1884 won 20 straight games, beating the recent winning streak of the Giants by three games. Charley Radbourne pitched in 18 of the 20 contests. The Providence club that season numbered, in addition to the mighty Radbourne, such players as Bancroft, Lorett, Farrell, Start, Daily, Irwin, Crane, Radford, Murray, Carroll, Denny, Bassett and Gilligan. The Chicago club that was overthrown four times in the Providence sweep had such stars as Anson, Pfeffer, Williamson, Burns, Dalrymple, Kelly, Gore, Billy Sunday and Silver Flint—a wonderful organization.

TURKEYS ARE MOST VALUABLE SIDELINE

Feeding Time on a Western Turkey Ranch.

A more profitable sideline than turkeys for the farmer can hardly be found for those who are favorably situated for raising them, according to W. A. Lippincott, professor of poultry husbandry in the Kansas state agricultural college.

"Improper feeding, combined with close confinement, has been the cause of many failures in turkey raising," says Professor Lippincott. "Given free range on the average farm, the poults can generally pick up their own living. One light feed a day for the purpose of inducing them to come in at night is sufficient.

"If the mother hen is confined to a coop and the poults are allowed to run in and out, three times a day is often enough to feed and very little should be given at a time. The poults should always be ready to eat—if they are given all they will eat several times a day, indigestion will result. If there is little or no food outside the coop for the poults to pick up, they should be fed five times a day, only a small quantity at a time.

"A good feed for the first few days after the brood is hatched is stale bread soaked in milk and then squeezed dry. Corn-bread crumbs and clabbered milk or cottage cheese is often fed with excellent results. Green feed and grit should be on hand at all times. As poults grow older, the ration should gradually be changed to grain."

Freedom is the main essential in the care of the adults, says Professor Lippincott. With plenty of range where the turkeys can find insects, green vegetation, the seeds of weeds and grasses, and waste grain, the cost of raising them is small while the profits are large.

Grain and stock farms in the western part of the state are particularly well adapted to turkey raising, and especially is this noticeable in grasshopper years. Raising turkeys in confinement is generally unsuccessful, and where it has been tried the results have been discouraging. Plenty of range is essential in turkey raising.

Turkey hens often steal their nests in hidden places. To find these nests proves a long and tedious task. An easy method of finding the nests is to confine the hens early some morning after they have come down from roost and let them out late in the afternoon. Those that are laying will then head for their nests.

Fifteen turkey hens can be mated to a vigorous tom, in the opinion of

The Great American Birds.

Professor Lippincott. If 25 or 30 hens are kept, two cocks should not be allowed to run with them at the same time, but one should be confined one day, and the other the next. When two toms are allowed to run together during the mating season, they fight and the stronger does practically all the mating.

NEST SATISFACTORY TO HEN

To Obtain Best Results It Should Be Flattened and Shallow to Permit Turning Eggs.

Next time you find a nest of eggs which a hen has stolen away, take a lesson in the proper architecture of such a structure. It may save a few broken eggs or a poor hatch the next time you proceed to set a hen in your own clumsy, human fashion.

The keynote of the stolen nest is its flattened, shallow design. This is the way nature has demanded it should be constructed to give the best result. How different from the deep, hollowed-out contraption into which so many people pile the eggs they expect Biddy to transform into downy chicks.

A nest to prove satisfactory should be shallow enough to permit a hen to turn her eggs properly. It should be flat enough to permit the newly hatched chicks to lie where they are when released from the shell instead of sliding down into the bottom and having the eggs roll on top of them.

IDEAL QUARTERS FOR MITES

For Rapid and Profitable Gains Poultry Should Be Kept Comfortable and Cheerful.

Filth should never be allowed to accumulate, because it makes ideal quarters for lice and mites. All drinking pans and feeding pans should be thoroughly cleaned each day, and the soil in the poultry yard should be purified by drainage and tillage. To make rapid and profitable gains the poultry should at all times be kept comfortable and cheerful.

ATTENTION TO BROODY HENS

Keep Brooding House Dark and Handle Fowls Carefully, Avoiding Unnecessary Excitement.

If the eggs are to be placed under a hen, transfer her at night and keep the brooding house dark for 24 hours. Handle the broody hen carefully. Do not excite her or she may refuse to sit. Keep her nest clean and free from lice and be sure that fresh water is always at hand.

LIME AND MINERAL MATTER

To Prevent Soft-Shelled Eggs Hens Must Have Proper Ingredients—Exercise Is Good.

Soft-shelled eggs are primarily due to the improper working of the egg-laying organs. This often comes about because the hen is not supplied with sufficient lime and mineral matter in her ration. Sometimes, too, a large supply of animal food will unduly excite the organs, preventing them from their proper function. Overfeeding hens is another cause. When the cause is located, the remedy suggests itself. For overfeeding or overstimulation, supply 20 to 50 grains of epsom salts as a dose for the adult fowl and regulate the feeding methods. The medicine may be applied in the drinking water or in the food. Exercise will take away the attention of the hens from the soft-shelled eggs.

DUCKS REQUIRE MUCH FEED

Grows Faster Than Chicken and Is Ready for Market Earlier—Weight of Pekin Eggs.

A young duck eats much more than a chicken of the same age, but it grows much faster and is ready for market much earlier, so that it costs no more to raise a duck than to raise a chicken.

After ducks get their growth they can be fed as cheaply as hens and during laying season, when ducks are averaging a pound of eggs a week, do not need any more feed than do the hens.

Twelve Pekin duck eggs weigh as much as 17 hen's eggs—a little more than two and one-fourth pounds.

PLOWING UP POULTRY YARDS

Fowls Get Beneficial Effect of Purifying Influence of the Freshly-Turned Soil.

By plowing or spading up the poultry yard two or three times during the summer months, the fowls not only get the beneficial effect of the purifying influence of the freshly-turned soil, but the manure is turned under, and considerable excellent food is obtained by the scratching birds.

Not a Great Pleasure.

Professor Huxley wrote to Lord Farrer in 1881: "Of a few innocent pleasures left to man past middle life the jamming common sense down the throats of fools is perhaps the keenest." A great pleasure, indeed, to one who enjoys dodging brickbats.

Drastic Education.

In the school of experience a man receives practical education from his sisters, an advanced education from his wife, and then is astonished to discover that daughter can put him through a "finishing course" that leaves him feeling limp and dizzy.

CANON W. H. CARNEGIE AND H IS BRIDE, WHO WAS FORMERLY MRS. JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN.

First Photograph of the Couple to Reach this Country Since the Wedding

Mrs. Mary Chamberlain, widow of the British Colonial Secretary, the late Joseph Chamberlain, was married to the Rev. William Hartley Carnegie, rector of St. Margaret's and Canon of Westminster, at Westminster Abbey, on August 3.

The bride is a daughter of the late William C. Endicott, secretary of war in President Cleveland's cabinet. King George offered her an earldom after Mr. Chamberlain's death in 1914, but she refused it. Mr. Chamberlain had, upon several occasions, refused a title.

Believe.

Believe with all your heart that you will do what you were made to do. Never for an instant harbor a doubt of this. Drive it out of your mind if it seeks entrance. Entertain only the friend thoughts or ideals of the thing you are bound to achieve. Reject all thought enemies, all discouraging moods—everything which would even suggest failure or unhappiness.—Success.

Record Breaker.

"Maggie," said the inexperienced young thing to the cook, "the biscuits were a sight. If you can't do better next time I will have to discharge you." "Ye will, will ye? I'll have ye know, mum, that I've been workin' out for two years, an' I've worked for 89 of the best families in town, an' I ain't ever bin discharged yet. I'm lavin' this afthernoon for a better place."

Same Family Name.

An Irishman was seated in a railway carriage next to a very pompous-looking man, with whom he commenced a conversation in a rather free and easy manner. At length the pompous one said: "My good man, reserve your conversation for one of your own equals. I would have you know that I am a K. C. (king's counsel). The Irishman jumped up and held out his hand. "Begorra, shake!" he exclaimed, "Oi'm a Casey meself."

Average Man's View.

No matter how much a man's success may amaze him, he always regains his self-possession in time to put on before others the air of one who feels that his merits have merely received their due reward, and is therefore taking what has come to him as a matter of course.

OLD SENATE HOUSE PLEASES VISITORS

Among callers at the Senate House today was Dr. Maurice C. Ashley, medical superintendent of Middletown State Hospital, who was in Kingston on legal business. With him was Mrs. Ashley and their daughter. Dr. Ashley has long been one of the admirers of the Senate House and its possessions and was outspoken in his praise of the transformation effected in the arrangement of the historic relics under the direction of the custodian, Miss Westbrook.

"In former years," said Dr. Ashley, "much of the material displayed was only to be classed as junk and it is good to notice that this stuff has been relegated to the background while the articles of genuine historic value have been given a place in keeping with their importance. The Senate House is always on my itinerary when I am in the vicinity of Kingston."

A picture quite in keeping with the quaintness of the building is that made at the rear entrance by Mrs. Robert Loughran who is now sewing on her fifth silk rug for use in the Dutch room of the Senate house. These rugs are of the oldtime design and material and when placed will add greatly to the picturesque appearance of the Dutch Room.

COMMISSION PAY UP IN COURT

Application for their final compensation as members of Ashokan Business Damage Commission No. 3 was made to Judge Hasbrouck this morning at the special term of the supreme court held at the court house by the Hon. George B. Wellington of Troy, John M. Schoonmaker of this city and the Hon. Seaman Miller of New York city.

Howard Chipp, who appeared for the commissioners, stated that the application was for the commissioners' services in connection with the trial and decision of the claim of the E. I. duPont deNemours Powder Company, and that the commissioners had received no compensation since July 1, 1915, a majority and minority report being for an award of $114,000, from which Commissioner Wellington dissented.

Mr. Chipp said that Commissioners Wellington and Miller asked compensation for twenty-two days each, eleven days having been occupied in hearings and eleven days in examining the property and testimony. Commissioner Schoonmaker asked for an extra day he had spent in examining the property alone With that particularity which one of the leading members of the bar might describe as "meticulous," said Mr Chipp, the city had said in its replying affidavits that Mr. Schoonmaker was late one day, and he had no doubt that Mr Schoonmaker would waive his claim for compensation for the extra day. The city, said Mr. Chipp, had also prepared a schedule showing the number of hours occupied by the commissioners at their hearings, but among lawyers he was not sure that the value of services rendered was measured by hours, but by the amount of work performed. The city also tried to minimize the work done by stating that a number of awards had been reserved by the court. To Judge Hasbrouck's question as to what the commissioners wanted, Mr. Chipp said they did not state how much they asked for but would be entirely satisfied with the amount that should be fixed by the court. The affidavits submitted, said Mr. Chipp, showed that they had been paid about $20,000 apiece.

William McM. Speer, special counsel for the city, said the commissioners had received over $20,000 each, of which over $6,000 each had been allowed for services in the duPont case. The appellate courts had held that no per diem allowance should be made but that services should be regarded as a whole. In three years the commission had tried only thirteen contested cases, the only one of which that had stood the test of the court was one in which an award of $150 had been made, which award the city had not thought it worth while to contest. In the language of the appellate court in passing on one case decided by this commission, the court had found "a number of errors and several absurdities," and in the duPont case, which the court would be asked to pass on later, the same condition would be found, as for instance, holding the city of New York responsible for the reduction of the tariff on wood flour and holding the city also responsible for the enactment of the eight-hour law, both of which findings the court would find in the duPont case.

Mr. Chipp, in reply, said that if the justices of this district were docked in their pay every time they made an erroneous decision, they would have very little salary coming to them at the end of the year. Judge Hasbrouck took exception to this statement.

Judge Hasbrouck allowed Commissioners Schoonmaker and Miller the sum of one thousand dollars each, and Chairman Wellington, eleven hundred dollars, and allowed each commissioner his expeness.

WALTER PIPP.

WALTER PIPP AFTER HOME RUN HONORS.

Walter Pipp.

It is beyond possibility that Walter Pipp, first baseman for the New York Yankees, will finish the season leading the American League in home run hits. Last year, Pipp, then playing his first season in the majors, clouted out four circuit hits. He already has seven to his credit this year, the number with which Bobby Roth grabbed the honors in the American League last year. Frank Baker has eight home runs to his credit this year, but he made them all before he caved in his ribs in that memorable collision with the grand stand.

NEW SECRETARY OF KINGSTON Y.M.C.A

He is Francis Lambert Thornbery of Waterville, Maine—President Matthews Resigns and is Succeeded by Frank R. Powley.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Kingston Y. M. C. A. Friday evening the services of Francis Lambert Thornbery of Waterville, Maine, were engaged as general secretary to succeed Secretary George D. Beckwith, who recently resigned to enter county work of the association up-state. Mr. Thornbery comes highly recommended and is expected to take up his duties here October 1st.

The new secretary is a graduate of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., where he was educated as a chemist. He took up work as an experimental chemist for the Great Northern railway in St. Paul and later entered Y. M. C. A. work as educational secretary in the railroad branch at St. Louis. After that he was general secretary in Bellevue, Ohio, and in his present connection at Waterville.

Mr. Thornbery comes highly recommended and has been most successful in the positions he has occupied in Y. M. C. A. work. Recently he looked over the local field and met the directors of the Kingston organization and final action was taken on the applications at this meeting.

Much to the regret of his associates, President Frank B. Matthews announced his resignation from that office in which he has served most admirably for the past three years. Mr Matthews will continueas a member of the board of directors, however. Vice-president Frank R. Powley was then chosen president and Charles R O'Connor vice-president in Mr. Powley's place.

The hearts of many friends in Ellenville were saddened Friday morning when word was received that Miss Florence Whiteley, eldest daughter of Augustus Whiteley and Lucy Stevens, his wife of Napanoch had died during Thursday night of complications at the age of twenty-four years. Her death occurred at Whiteley family home near Grahamsville where the young lady had been spending some time hoping to recover her health, but the beautiful life was not spared. Especially sad for the surviving parents and sister for it is only about two years ago when the only son, Joseph Whiteley, a promising young man was taken by death. Miss Whiteley was a graduate of the Ellenville High School a few years ago, and in June this year completed a four years' course in an eastern college, returning to her home at Napanoch in failing health from which she could not rally The bereaved family have the sympathy of many friends. Undertaker M. C. Wood brought the body from Grahamsville to her home at Napanoch early Friday morning Funeral and burial arrangements to be announced later.

WHEAT MARKET GOES WILD AGAIN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, August 19.—In an excited market wheat jumped again at the opening today and at the start the traders were so nervous that the range at the opening was wide, September scoring another advance of nearly 3½c opening at 146½ to 144½. Dec. opened at 150½ to 148½, against yesterday's close of 147¼.

Corn and oats were stronger.

Better cables from Europe, export demand, bad crop reports from Canada and belief that American farmers will soon have all their stocks in the hands of the millers, so there will be no chance of a break were the causes.

Closing Prices.

Wheat—Sept. $1.47⅝ to $1.47⅞; Dec. $1.51⅝ to $1.51¼; May $1.55¼ to $1.55½

Corn—Sept. 86⅞c; Dec. 75½ to 75c; May 77¾c.

Oats—Sept 45¼ to 45⅛c; Dec. 48½c; May 51¾c bid.

Bouncing Beer Barrel.

A beer keg bounced off the Barmann delivery truck at noon today as the truck was turning into the alley at the Elks' Club and crashed through the plate glass window of Supervisor Schermerhorn's tailoring establishment. The keg was uninjured but the window glass is in very small pieces.

BASEBALL OF BYGONE DAYS

Related by James Wood, Captain and Manager of the Famous Chicago White Stockings of 1870-71, to Frank G. Menke.

"The formation of the National League in 1876 was the direct outgrowth of crookedness which had existed in baseball some years previously, and which I was fortunate enough to uncover during the sensational Louisville-Chicago series in the summer of 1875.

"Some historians have it that Hall, Craver and Devlin, the Louisville players, were expelled from baseball in 1877, but that is an error. They were barred from baseball two years earlier, due to the fact that I intercepted their telegrams, addressed to some of my Chicago players, in which they outlined how my team was to throw the ensuing series to the admittedly inferior Louisville club for the benefit of the gamblers.

"In the early days of baseball, especially during that period from 1869 to 1875, baseball was the real gambling sport in America. Hundreds of thousands of dollars often were bet on the outcome of big league series. Gamblers circulated—without restraint—through the stands, offering bets. They would lay odds on any angle of the game; bet on the straight outcome, on the number of hits, the number of runs in each inning and the number of errors, etc.

"Not only was there heavy plunging on the games in the parks, but thousands of dollars were wagered in the poolrooms in every city on the result of the different games.

"And because of the tendency of the public to back their diamond favorites to the limit, the gamblers planned a huge clean-up in that Louisville-Chicago series, expecting the aid of the three Louisville players.

"Craver the Louisville catcher and captain, was selected as the real go-between. He previously played on my Chicago team, but I suspicioned him of shady tactics and released him. Louisville later signed him. Craver told the gamblers that he needed the assistance of one or two of the other Louisville players to swing the big coup, and, with their sanction, enlisted the services of Hall, the centerfielder, and Devlin, the first baseman of the Louisville club.

"Shortly before Louisville came to Chicago to play that series, telegrams arrived for some of my players. They were not at the club house at the time, and I thought probably the messages might contain some important news. So I opened them and in the reading of those messages there was unfolded before my eyes the monstrous plot to throw the ensuing Louisville-Chicago games to Louisville for the benefit of the gamblers.

"There was nothing in those messages which led me to believe that my own boys were in the plot up to that time. The messages were more in the form of a proposal than anything else. But the way the proposition was worded meant that no reply from my players to whom the messages were addressed meant that they would enter the plot and would throw the game to the Louisville club.

"Those messages promised my boys—that is, those who were to be ringleaders in bringing about our defeat—a fabulous sum of money. And why shouldn't they have been given a big amount had they entered into the compact? The gamblers behind the scheme had planned to bet every dollar they could get on the Louisville team. The odds were big—something like 5 to 1 that Chicago would win the series. It meant close to $1,000,000 for that outfit if it could swing the game to Louisville.

"Well, I tucked those messages in my pocket and never said a word to any of the players. When the Louisville team arrived, I kept my players under cover. I didn't want that Hall-Devlin-Craver crowd to meet my boys and to discover that the message never had been delivered.

"It was my aim to give the gamblers what they had coming to them; to trap them with the very same trap they had laid for others. And that is just what happened.

"Assuming that the game was fixed, the gamblers went ahead and bet every dollar they could muster on Louisville to win—and Louisville was beaten!

"Not being absolutely sure that my players hadn't been tampered with in person, I called them together before the game began. I told them that there was a scheme afoot to have Chicago throw the game and the series to Louisville. And then I told my boys that the first imperfect play on the part of anyone of them would mean not only his removal from the game but his expulsion from baseball.

"And, to this day, I regard the playing of my Chicago team that afternoon, as the most perfect I have ever seen any club perform. Those boys played beyond themselves; not one of them dared to make an error of hand or head, fearing he would be tainted immediately with the suspicion of being a crook.

"We won—easily—and the terrific financial loss which the gamblers suffered that day cured many of them forever of the plunging fever.

"Immediately after our series was over, I went to William H. Hulbert, president of our club, and laid all the facts before him.

"'This is the climax,' said Hulbert. 'Baseball is a sport and should be kept a clean sport. Gambling should not enter into it. Unless we take some drastic steps now the game will be wrecked on the rocks of crookedness.'

"And Hulbert, one of the finest sportsmen the game ever has produced, then went to the other club owners, made a formal complaint against Craver, Devlin and Hall and brought about their expulsion. The story of the frame-up was given wide publicity at the time and it served as a lesson to all other ball players.

"Until that time, baseball had been controlled by an organization known as the National Association of Professional Baseball Players.

"'It is not powerful enough and its scope is too limited,' said Hulbert. 'A new ruling body is needed—one with absolute authority; one which can stamp out dishonesty and gambling in baseball.'

"And so Hulbert, working unceasingly during the winter of 1875 and the spring of 1876, brought about the formation of the National League—the same National League which has lived and prospered during 42 years of comming'ed peace and warfare.

"Hulbert, in organizing the new circuit made it a condition that 'no club can be a member of the National League unless it has a population of 75,000 or more.' The original National League circuit follows:

Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and Louisville, in the west; Boston, Hartford, New York (Mutual team) and the Philadelphia Athletics in the east.

"Hulbert was the unanimous selection for the presidency of the league. All he needed to do was to indicate his willingness to hold the office. But Hulbert didn't want it to appear that he sought the honor as a reward for what he had done.

"'I would suggest that in electing our first president, we dismiss the straight voting plan,' he said. 'Let us write on separate slips of paper the names of each club president. Then drop them in a hat. The first name withdrawn shall be our president.'

"The suggestion was accepted; the name of Morgan G. Bulkeley, of Hartford, Conn., was extracted and to him was accorded the honor of being the first chief executive of the National League.

"My own baseball career ended with the close of the season of 1875. During 1874 I had lost a limb due to blood poisoning following a knife jab, ending my playing days. In 1875 I consented to manage the White Stockings, the team I originally organized in 1869-70, but I found during that 1875 season that the managerial end of the game was a bit too strenuous for a man in my condition, and I hung up my uniform when the last game was played—never to don it again."

ARMY MULE EXPERT TELLS OF HIS WORK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

San Antonio, Texas, Aug. 19.—H. W. Daly, chief packer of the Quartermaster Corps, U. S. A., the greatest expert in the possibilities of the Missouri mule on earth, is here. His duty is the organization of ten pack trains and he is conducting a school for muleteers.

The model class of the school comprises one gray bell horse and a company of sixty-four white or gray mules—all "veterans," for this is the pack train that crossed into Mexico with Sibley soon after the Glenn Springs raid.

Here is an inventory of a pack train: Packmaster, who gets $100 a month but no rations; "cargador," $60 a month and rations; blacksmith or horseshoer, $75 a month, [illegible] and rations; cook, $40 a month and rations; ten packers, $50 a month and rations. Each individual in a pack train had his own mount, so there are to be fourteen riding mules and the remainder—fifty animals—carry the packs. The duties of the bell horse is to lead the procession.

As a general thing, each pack mule will walk away with a minimum load of 250 pounds, so that means something more than six ton of cargo to the train and, if need be the cargo can be raised to eight tons.

Over in the Philippines one of Mr. Daly's mules rambled around on mountain trails with 540 pounds aboard and the load happened to be a mountain howitzer. This mule, while not awarded a medal, was nevertheless a hero and saved the day for the howitzer put to route any enemy apparently untouched by mere rifle fire.

When packers become proficient they should be able to load a mule in about thirty seconds. As Daly figures it, two months are required to turn out a fire-class pack train of the sort above criticism.

Nowadays the "aparejo," or pack saddle, which Daly invented for our army is made to conform to the mule so there is little possibility of the heavy load chafing or injuring the animal's back.

Daly's experiences as a packer started in the spring of 1865 when he crossed the British Northwest Territories from Montreal to Vancouver and was employed in bringing in supplies on mule back to the Canadian mining camps.

Then he engaged as packer in many Indian campaigns of the United States Army, including the operations against Geronimo.

When the Spanish War broke out he was working on a railroad in Mexico. He enlisted immediately and went to Cuba. After the campaign he was called to Washington, where he devised improvements in pack train transportation and wrote a manual of instruction in pack train transportation. He also went to West Point to lecture.

From 1902 to 1903 he was stationed at Fort Leavenworth and there made further improvements in field artillery, mountain and machine gun, engineer, signal, hospital and ordnance corps pack equipment. On February 13, 1903 he was made chief packer of the army.

"For mountain work no substitute to take the place of the mule will ever be found" said Daly today.

Good Excuse for Mischief.

My little daughter was upstairs and, thinking she might be in mischief, I quietly entered the room where she was playing, and discovered she was throwing water on the passersby. After being asked what she was doing that for, she said: "Oh, I'm fooling the people, mamma; they all fink it's raining."—Chicago Tribune.

REV. DR. BAYLIS ACCUSED OF THEFT

Director-General of Allies' Hospital Relief Commission Indicted for Larceny in Connection With His Society.

The New York Sun says:

The Rev. Dr. Charles T. Baylis, formerly pastor of the Bushwick Avenue Congregational Church in Brooklyn and now director-general of the Allies' Hospital Relief Commission, was indicted by the grand jury Friday for grand larceny in connection with his management of the affairs of the commission.

There were three indictments, one for grand larceny in the first degree and involving $7,000, the amount collected for the commission and alleged to have been misappropriated by Dr. Baylis; another for grand larceny in the second degree, charging the theft of $100 contributed by Daniel Guggenheim, and the third for the alleged theft of $100 contributed by George A. Kessler.

Dr. Baylis could not be found at his office in the Woolworth Building yesterday although a detective from the district attorney's office waited there all afternoon armed with a bench warrant for his arrest, but he communicated with District Attorney Swann, asking what his bail would be. He was told it would be $2,500, and he said he would set about getting it.

Prosecutor Warns Countess.

It was reported to the district attorney that a meeting would be called soon by Oscar S. Straus and other members of the executive board of the commission to bring its affairs to a close, at least temporarily, and to accept no more contributions at present.

District Attorney Swann wrote a letter Friday to Countess Castel Vecchio, 27 West Sixty-first street, advising her not to give her services to the commission's work, as she had written that she would, because he believed Dr. Baylis had not acted in good faith.

Among the witnesses before the grand jury were Frederick A. Collins, secretary to Daniel Guggenheim, who testified to having received a circular from the commission setting forth how the moneys collected would be spent for supplies for the allied hospitals and how a ship had been donated free of charge for the transportation of the supplies. Other witnesses, who had been in the employ of Dr. Baylis, testified there had been no such ship.

Sent Envoy to W. F. McCombs.

George Buck, one of these witnesses, said that Dr. Baylis had sent him to William F. McCombs, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, to outline the commission's work. Buck did so, telling of the ship and everything, but Mr. McCombs, said Buck, was himself at the head of a big relief commission and told him that no such ship as Dr. Baylis claimed to have could sail without his (McCombs's) authorization. Later Buck said Dr. Baylis admitted that he had no ship.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, who is now in France, gave $100 to the commission. She may testify in the proceedings if she comes back to this country in time.

Adolf Kallman, who got 65 per cent commission for collecting funds for Dr. Baylis, told the grand jury he had to give part of his commission to Dr. Baylis. Assistant District Attorney Samuel Markewich said that he had in his possession a letter from Dr. Baylis to Kallman demanding 25 per cent of the 65 per cent that Kallman got. Dr. Baylis got a salary of $100 a week.

For a couple of weeks the grand jury has been inquiring into the affairs of the commission, which has had among its contributors and patrons many prominent persons, including Col. Roosevelt, Gov. McCall of Massachusetts and Alton B. Parker.

Hot Liners.

(By Frank G. Menke.)

The gap between the first and six teams in the American League has been lessened to five games between the leading Red Sox and the Tigers in sixth place.

The Yankees have taken on a new lease of life. They cleaned up the series with the Indians and jumped into fifth place.

The White Sox-Red Sox "croocial" series ended a draw. Each team won two games.

The victory yesterday put the White Sox back into second place.

The Athletics have made a lot of trouble for the Browns, playing harder against them than they have against any team lately. It took eleven innings for the Browns to capture yesterday's game.

All the runs in the Tigers-Nationals game were made in the second inning. The Nationals got one more than the Tigers.

The Giants found their batting lamps yesterday in the Cub game. But the Cubs out-hit them in the second game. The break was even.

Manager Robinson was right when he said "Look out for the Phillies." They are keeping right at the heels of the Dodgers and have jumped into second place.

Fatal ten innings for the Braves. The Cardinals won.

Seven Days to Get Sober.

It took Eddie Kelder just seven days to sober up enough to be arraigned before Recorder Lang in recorder's court today. Eddie was arrested on August 12 by Seth Jocelyn of the sheriff's office, and locked up in jail on a charge of public intoxication. This morning Eddie pleaded for clemency and Recorder Lang informed him he would be lenient. He had intended sentencing Eddie for six months but would make it four months in jail instead.

A Union Service.

The Rev. Alexander MacGeorge of Harrison, N. J., will occupy the pulpit of the Fair Street Reformed Church on Sunday. Albany Avenue Baptist Church will unite with the Fair Street Church.

Traveler's Ink.

White blotting paper is saturated with aniline black and several sheets are pasted together so as to form a thick paste. When required for use a small piece is torn off and covered with a little water. This makes a good writing ink. A square inch of paper will produce enough ink to do considerable writing and a few pads would be all that an exploring party need carry with them. As water is always available the ink is readily made.

Daily Thought.

Explaining Fluency of Speech.

The common fluency of speech in many men and most women is owing to a scarcity of matter and a scarcity of words; for whoever is a master of language and has a mind full of ideas, will be apt in speaking to hesitate upon the choice of both; whereas common speakers have only one set of ideas, and one set of words to clothe them in, and these are always ready at the mouth, so people come faster out of a church when it is almost empty than when a crowd is at the door.—Swift.

Mean Man's Tankard.

One of the quaintest drinking vessels in existence may be seen at Nuremberg in the old fifteenth-century inn where Albrecht Durer took his ease. It is a double vessel, one tankard fitting closely into the other, and is said to have been the artist's own design and reserved for himself and his wife. When he was in good humor, says tradition, Durer had the inner tankard taken out and filled for his wife, when displeased he kept both tankards together for his own use and let his companion go dry.

Evening Thought.

Men lose wisdom just in proportion as they are conceited.
